

Melvyn Leffler, Edward Stettinius Professor of American History at the University of Virginia, speaks on his latest book "For the Soul of Mankind: The United States, the Soviet Union, and the Cold War" on February 8, 2008, at the Mershon Center for International Security Studies.

Melvyn Leffler's lecture drew more than 70 people to the Mershon Center, one of its biggest audiences for an event.

Melvyn Leffler (front right), speaks with graduate students in history at The Ohio State University during an afternoon seminar on February 8, 2008, at the Mershon Center. Leffler discussed the end of the Cold War and asked each student about his or her research project.

Melvyn Leffler (left), Edward Stettinius Professor of American History at the University of Virginia, visited the Mershon Center as part of the Diplomatic History Lecture Series, organized by Robert McMahon (left), Ralph D. Mershon Professor of History.